ABOUT ME

I am a graphic designer passionate about design, photography, arts and culture. For the past few years I've been working independently on all kinds of inspiring design projects alongside raising my three little girls. I have been fortunate to work on exciting projects with wonderful creatives and I look forward to start working with new people in new places and broaden my horizon!

I recently enrolled in online courses at Skillcrush, adding coding and front end development to my skills. I love it and plan to continue my studies in that area of design. My biggest asset is people skills, I am versatile, project oriented and enjoy problem solving. I am organised and meticulous in finishing my projects in a neat and accessible format. I am happy by nature and I'm always ready to lend a helping hand. My other great passion in life is my family, I love spending time with my little girls and my husband Skúli Axelsson, a project manager at Advania.
